Free Schools*
David Gillespie

David Gillespie has six kids. When it came time to select high schools, he thought he should investigate the level of advantage his kids would enjoy if he spent the required $1.3 million and sent them all to private schools. Shockingly, the answer was: none whatsoever. Intrigued, David continued his research. He discovered that class size doesn't matter, kids are better off in co-ed, composite classes are fine, fancy buildings are a waste of money, the old-tie network won't cut it in the new industries and NAPLAN is misread by everyone, so is largely meaningless as a measure of quality. Taking on an ingrained and historical system of vested interests, this book is controversial and absolutely necessary.

Chopper 9: The Final Cut*
Mark Read

"Only a drunk or a madman would survive - luckily, on that occasion, I was both." Ex-convict, author and celebrity Mark Brandon 'Chopper' Read gives readers a unique insight into Australia's sordid criminal underworld. The Final Cut continues the incredible story of the self-confessed executioner, who knew receiving a phone call from an old friend meant another associate was soon to be a walking corpse. Written in Chopper's unique style and featuring his dark humour, the ninth instalment of Chopper's memoirs tells the story of the Tassie Chainsaw Massacre and explains why drinking Crown Lagers is the key to winning a serious pub brawl.

Chopper 10.5: The Popcorn Gangster*
Mark Read

"What if there was an author who wrote about crime and therefore relied upon death to earn a living." Buried bodies, buried guns, buried money and buried truths. Only one man who's been on the inside tells it like it is about the Australian hit men, bkie wars and drug syndicates. His peers continue to die violent deaths, but Mark Brandon 'Chopper' Read is still alive to tell the real story. This is the life of the standover man who went from ex-con to icon. The Popcorn Gangster recounts the saga of the Calabrian contract and other grisly anecdotes.

Chopper 11: Last Man Standing*
Mark Read

Mark Brandon 'Chopper' Read was released from Pentridge Prison in 1991 and became a bestseller with his autobiography Chopper: From the Inside. Chopper's adventures, however, were far from over. The smart money said that Chopper would be the first to go in any underworld war but the smart money was wrong. He vowed to outlive his enemies and write their epitaphs and he did so, predicting who would be killed long before the assassins' guns were loaded. Only Chopper would live to tell the tale, with Last Man Standing the final instalment of his series of funny, yet often brutal memoirs.

Love Letters of the Great War

Mandy Kirkby

Love Letters of the Great War brings together some of the most romantic correspondence ever written: passionate love letters sent from British, American, French, German, Australian and Canadian troops in the height of battle, and the heart-breaking replies of their girlfriends, wives and sweethearts. From eloquent declarations of love and longing to wrenching accounts of fear, jealousy and betrayal, each set of letters reveals a story. Some soldiers wrote simple thank you messages for provisions sent, others penned heartfelt goodbyes, many shared sweet dreams of home. But in all the correspondence, there lies a truly human portrait of love and war.

The Republic of Pirates

Colin Woodard

In the early eighteenth century a number of the great pirate captains, including Edward 'Blackbeard' Teach and 'Black Sam' Bellamy, joined forces. This infamous 'Flying Gang' was more than simply a thieving band of brothers. Inspired by notions of self-government, they established a crude but distinctive form of democracy in the Bahamas, carving out their own zone of freedom in which indentured servants were released and leaders chosen or deposed by a vote. They were ultimately overcome by their archnemesis, Captain Woodes Rogers and the brief but glorious Republic of Pirates came to an end. Colin Woodard's account is vividly told, full of incident and adventure, and brings to life this virtually unexplored chapter in the Golden Age of Piracy.

Aussie True Crime Stories

Joe Tog

In this compilation of twenty true stories by Joe Tog, the criminal genre is nailed exactly as it was during the 70's and the 80's - he experienced it - both inside prison and on the outside. Step by step he describes how a convicted murderer carried out an audacious escape from Pentridge Prison. An arsonist at work, bomb-making and how to morph a gun are just some of the criminal subjects covered in this book. Card cheating, safe breaking and a street riot are all colourfully detailed as he segues from story to story.

Churchill's First War

Con Coughlin

In the 1890s the British were holed up in Afghanistan in much the same situation as they are now, fighting the great-great-grandfathers of today's Taliban and tribal insurgents. Amongst them was the young Winston Churchill whose account of the campaign, The Story of the Malakand Field Force, was not only his first published work but is now required reading for military commanders on the ground, both British and American. Here, acclaimed foreign correspondent Con Coughlin tells the story of that campaign, a story of high adventure but one which contains many lessons and warnings for today.

The Last Foundling

Tom Mackenzie

When she fell pregnant in London in 1938, Jean knew that she couldn't keep her baby. She was unmarried - her sweetheart having departed to set up a home for them both in South Africa - and living alone with no money or family close by. Afraid and desperate, she implored the panel of the Foundling Hospital, the institution set up by philanthropist Thomas Coram in 1739, to give her child the care that she could not. The Last Foundling is the story of a little boy and the mother he never stopped hoping to meet. A compelling narrative of desertion and neglect, it is also a moving account of survival and the love that led a family back together.
